

Dr. Oz gives Syosset educators the lowdown on health

(11/06/07) SYOSSET - A regular Oprah talk show guest rolled into Syosset Tuesday to give some 1,200 teachers and staff members the lowdown on a new groundbreaking program.

Dr. Mehmet oz, a renowned cardiac surgeon and a best-selling author, was at Syosset High School to discuss his new Health Corps Program. The program is a groundbreaking holistic, preventive method that educates youngsters on how their bodies work through good nutrition and exercise.

In addition to talking about the program, the TV doc also brought a number of diseased organs for the audience to examine. One audience member said when she saw the organs it really hit home as to just what disease can do to your body.

The Health Corps Program is currently in 35 schools on the East Coast.
